Farewell Reception to Rev. and Mrs. Geeson

A farewell reception was given at the Knox Church on Tuesday evening in honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Geeson, who are leaving this week to take up the pastorate at Okotoks.

Dr. J. L. Clarke, on behalf of the church, bid Mr. and Mrs. Geeson "God-speed," thanking them for their work in this district and wishing them success in their new field of endeavor.

Mr. J. Boorman, on behalf of the Sunday School thanked Mr. and Mrs. Geeson for their efforts in the Sunday School work and especially thanked the Misses Geeson for their valuable assistance in the music of both church and Sunday School and their work as teachers.

A presentation of a beautiful chesterfield table was made on behalf of the Ladies' Aid as a memento of their stay in Didsbury.

Mrs. Boorman had charge of the entertainment and an enjoyable evening was spent in music and games.

WEDDINGS

TRAUB—DUBRO

A very pretty wedding took place in the Congregational Church, Carthage, South Dakota, at 7:30 p.m. June 14th, when Miss Viola Dubro, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Dubro, became the bride of Mr. Ozro Laverne Traub, of Didsbury, Alberta, Canada.

The ceremony, witnessed by many relatives and friends, was performed by Rev. W. M. Redfield, of Cremona, Alberta, assisted by Rev. Lee Bates, of Carthage.

During the service two vocal solos entitled "Love Never Faileth" and "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us" were sung by Rev. C. J. Hallman.

The bridal party entered the church to the beautiful strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Miss Dorothy Bates. The bride, lovely in white satin and fingertip veil with orange-blossom wreath, and carrying a Bible with lily-of-the-valley streamers, entered on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage.

The Misses Verda and Myrtle Dubro, sisters of the bride, dressed in aqua-blue taffeta, with corsage bouquets of flowers in pastel shades, acted as bridesmaids. The groom was supported by Mr. Alfred Eggerbauer, of De Smet.

After receiving many good wishes and congratulations, the happy couple accompanied by about one hundred guests, motored to Mr. Dubro's home near Esmond, where a delightful evening was spent.

The bride, well-known in the district, and who had been attending school at the Chicago Evangelistic Institute for the past two years, spoke a few words of greeting, after which Mr. Traub told of his work in Nigeria, West Africa, where he had been laboring as a missionary for the past three years. A delicious buffet-luncheon was enjoyed, and the wedding-cake, a beautifully decorated three-tier fruit cake, was served to all.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Baker, Omaha, Nebraska; Mrs. A. Traub, Didsbury, Alberta; Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Redfield, Cremona, Alberta; and Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Hallman, Didsbury, Alberta.

After a few days at Esmond, Mr. and Mrs. Traub left by motor for Western Canada by way of the Black Hills and Yellowstone.

At the close of Mr. Traub's 1-year furlough they plan to sail for Nigeria, where they will continue the work in which the groom has been engaged.—Contributed.

MCINTOSH—PERRIN

One of the prettiest weddings of the early summer took place at St. Stephen's Church, Calgary, at 8 p.m. on June 16, at which Margaret Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Perrin, formerly of Didsbury, became the bride of Mr. Alexander Frederick McIntosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McIntosh, Calgary. Rev. J. Burton Thomas officiated, and the chancel of the church was decorated for the occasion with lilac and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dainty gown of ivory satin made on simple princess lines, with a graceful skirt cut into a slight train. Her veil of white silk tulle fell in diaphanous folds from a coronet of orange blossoms. She also wore a cameo necklace, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bridal bouquet of pink roses and plumosa fern.

The bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Perrin, sister of the bride, and Miss Maisie McIntosh, sister of the groom.

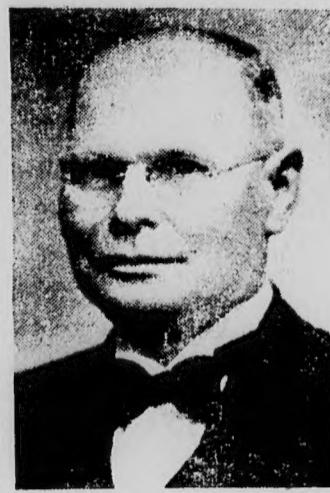

Mr. Fred Wilton was groomsman and Messrs. Henry Osborne and William Brown, ushers.

The bridal couple left the church through a guard-of-honor formed by the senior non-commissioned officers of the 1st Calgary Regiment (Tank) of which Mr. McIntosh is regimental sergeant-major.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Club Cafe. Fifty guests were served at a table centred with the wedding-cake, pink roses, lilacs and sweet-peas.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. A. F. McIntosh left for a short honeymoon trip to the Pacific coast.

New Minister for Knox United Church

Rev. John W. Fawcett

The induction service of Rev. John W. Fawcett who has been appointed pastor of the Knox United Church and the United Church at Westcott and Westerdale will be held this Thursday evening.

Mr. Fawcett came here from the Ogden United Church, Calgary, where he has just completed a five year ministry. He is a native of Ontario and came to Alberta in 1907 as a candidate for the ministry. He took theological training at Alberta College, Edmonton, and graduated in 1913.

During his 26 years of ministry in Alberta he has occupied pastures at Stavely, Coaldale, Bentley, Blackie, Bon Accord, Donald and Ogden. He has also held many executive positions in the United Church, being statistical secretary of the Alberta Conference 1920-22; assistant secretary 1924; chairman of Edmonton Presbytery 1929; secretary Calgary Presbytery 1935-39; commissioner to General Council of the United Church 1930 and 1938.

Examination Results.

Examination results for the non-departmental examinations, grades 10 and 11, are in course of preparation and will be published in next week's Pioneer.

Livestock Marketing Association Meeting

Declare 15c Bonus on Hogs Purchased

The annual meeting of the Mountain View Livestock Marketing Association was held at Olds on Saturday last.

The secretary's report showed the association handled 27,000 hogs during the year together with 1,877 cattle and 1,029 sheep. The financial statement showed a profitable season and a bonus of 15c per hog was declared to all contract signers up to August 1st, 1939.

The Provincial Marketing Act was thoroughly discussed and Mr. Houchin of Bowden was appointed to represent the association at a meeting of different associations to discuss the Act.

The following directors were elected: E. Esperson of Olds, chairman; R. Stewart of Innisfail, secretary; M. B. Latam, Red Deer; S. Martin, Olds; J. H. Hosegood, Didsbury; S. A. Houchin, Bowden; S. O'Brien, Didsbury; H. Fleischman, Dickson; W. D. Neesbit, Bowden.

Board of Trade Reorganizes.

N. S. Clarke was named President of the Didsbury Board of Trade at the reorganization meeting held on Monday evening.

The meeting was held at the instigation of the Junior Board of Trade and was very well attended. Mr. J. A. McGhee was appointed chairman and spoke at length on the necessity of a board of trade for the welfare of the town and district.

Mr. N. S. Clarke also spoke on the need of a live board of trade and cited the work accomplished by the boards of trade in different parts of the province. Others present at the meeting expressed their opinions which, with one or two exceptions, were favorable to reorganization.

It was decided on a motion by N. S. Clarke and C. E. Reiher that the Board of Trade be reorganized, with the present Junior Board of Trade retaining its identity as the Junior Section.

The following officers were elected:

President: N. S. Clarke

1st Vice-President: F. Dunlop

2nd Vice .. Jas. McGhee

Secretary: George Law

Treasurer: Ed. Ford

Council

Town: W. A. Austin, Tom Morris, Dr. Clarke, M. Weber.

East: Geo. Burns, Abe Snyder and J. D. Thomas.

West: Harvey Hosegood, W. H. Davies and Lee Sanderman.

The president and two vice-presidents were appointed a committee to confer with the Junior Section on all matters of policy.

Membership fees and meeting dates were left to be decided upon by the executive.

The Junior Board of Trade were accorded a hearty vote of thanks for their initiative in calling the meeting and instituting a feeling of co-operation throughout the district. A vote of thanks was also accorded the refreshment committee.

Open Sesame To Sales

Despite the many illustrations of its efficacy that could be quoted with little effort, the value and power of advertising is not yet fully appreciated, even by many of those who stand to gain the most by it.

It has been said that if you have something the world wants, the world will beat a pathway to your door, or words to that effect; but the corollary to this is most important one and one that is sometimes overlooked or minimized, is the necessity of letting the world know that you have something it wants, before it is possible to have the well-trodden path to the proverbial doorway.

In other words, advertising is the open sesame to sales of goods and services. The world may thirst and hunger for something you have to offer, but the world will continue to lack that something if you neglect to let the world know that you have it.

Apart altogether from the immediate value of advertising, the cumulative results that it brings is also often overlooked or minimized. Advertising brings demand. Demand spells sales. Sales create further demand and volume of production and volume means reduction in costs, lower selling prices and improved products. Lowered prices and better goods widen the range of demand and thus in turn stimulates additional sales.

A Remarkable Example

A shining example of the value of advertising as a stimulus to business is afforded by the automobile industry.

Less than 35 years ago Walter Chrysler paid $5,000 for his first automobile, a crude vehicle that sometimes ran and sometimes did not; a machine which had to be started by a hand crank, whose oil lamps had to be lighted with matches and whose brakes had to be operated by hand.

But consider the automobile of to-day and its cost. For one-fifth of the sum paid by Mr. Chrysler for his first machine, or even less, the present day purchaser can secure an infinitely better product, a machine that can be depended upon to do its work efficiently under almost any conditions and a machine comprising so many refinements and improvements when compared with the pioneer models, that it would take a column or more just to list them.

And this result, an infinitely superior vehicle at a fraction of the selling prices in the earlier days of the industry, is largely the result of advertising. What happened in the automobile industry was something like this, to quote Wright A. Patterson, an authority on the subject: "Advertising created increased demand. Demand was responsible for increased employment. Increased employment brought augmented purchasing power and this in turn stimulated further demand," aided and abetted by continued and additional advertising.

Thus on a foundation of advertising was built up one of the greatest industries on the continent, which, in its turn as it grew, fostered and developed many other subsidiary industries, creating more pay rolls and more potential and actual consumers of motor cars.

The same process and the same results are equally applicable to many other manufacturing industries, such as radio, refrigeration and a host of other smaller and less expensive commodities which are to be found in almost every household throughout the country. Their name is legion but they would not be in extensive use today and would not have built up flourishing industries had it not been for advertising, for without advertising no one would have known about them.

Discredited Theory

Nor are the benefits of advertising confined to manufacturers and consumers of manufactured products. They are of equal advantage to the distributing services of the country. The grocer, the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker are also beneficiaries of advertising, as well as their customers, if they only realized it.

The country merchant who makes use of his available local advertising facilities and as a result creates volume of sales for his goods or his services is enabled to reduce his overhead costs and is thus able to cheapen the product or the service which he offers, giving him a distinct advantage over his non-advertising competitor. As a result not only does the advertising merchant benefit but his customers are likewise beneficiaries, since they are able to buy a commodity or a service at less cost, or a better article or a better service at the same price. Either way, both benefit.

When this self-evident truth becomes better understood and more readily appreciated the false doctrine that is sometimes circulated in the towns and on the farms that advertising is an "economic waste", paid for by the consumers, will be discredited, as it deserves to be.

Anthrax is not considered an important public health problem in the U.S. since less than 200 cases occur annually.

Indians Had Remedies

Acquired Comprehensive Knowledge Of Medicinal Properties Of Herbs

Dr. J. J. Heagerty, director of Public Health Services of Canada, in the first of his series of addresses on "The Remains of Medicine in Canada" has given interesting data on Indian life. In this address, given in full in the Spring issue of "Health", the Ottawa authority says:

"The Indians were possessed of a comprehensive knowledge of the medicinal properties of the vegetable kingdom. They had remedies for each and every occasion. Their medicine man was only a concession to superstition and not the curator of their medical knowledge. Their system of medicine was an unwritten one that was handed down from generation to generation and, in spite of the manifold defects of such a system, was surprisingly complete."

Not His First Visit

King George When Duke Of York Was In Niagara Falls

Contrary to general belief, it was not the first time that King George VI set foot on American soil when he made his visit to the United States.

As proof that the King, then a youth of seventeen, spent several hours across the border back in 1913, the Rev. J. W. Whillans, minister of Knox Presbyterian church, Brantford, Ont., produced a photograph he snapped just after Prince Albert, Duke of York, as he was known then, and a party of British naval cadets had disembarked at Lewiston. "This picture," said Mr. Whillans, "is without doubt the first of the present king taken on American soil, and I have every reason to believe that it is the only one in existence to-day showing His Majesty in the land of the Stars and Stripes."

The King was then known as Prince Albert, his age was seventeen, and he was a naval cadet attached to H.M.S. Cumberland, which had put into Halifax.

Some Cooking Hints

Things One Should Know To Get The Best Results*

When a cake is done it is a delicate brown, has shrunk slightly from the edge of the pan and when pressed lightly with the finger tips, springs back and leaves no mark on the surface.

For best results the ingredients for a cake—flour, eggs, and milk—should be at room temperature. Besides, the shortening and sugar mixture is much easier to cream thoroughly and the result is a tender, moist cake.

Properly beaten egg whites for cakes just hold their shape. They are glossy and have a moist rather than a dull and dry appearance.

Race Meet is Big Success.

After being postponed twice the Didsbury race meet was given good weather on Wednesday and considering the circumstances a good crowd turned out with almost 1000 people passing through the gate.

There were good entries in all the races, four being entered in the 2.25 harness race and six in the 2.80 class. In each of the running races, six horses entered.

The starter was J. A. McCulloch, Calgary; judge, W. B. Nelson and George Anthony, of Calgary; and timer, George Haug, of Carstairs.

The following were the results of the races:

Morris and Miss Lane comprise the number one team but get keen competition from the other two combinations. The Virginia Military Institute at Lexington is the locale of the triple romance.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE
Director "Crop Testing Plan"

Official despatches from Rome tell us that the Italian people have been ordered to reduce their consumption of coffee to the minimum, and if possible not to drink any at all. "In this way," the order continues, "Italy will outsmart those countries which are selling coffee to us only for our gold and who refuse to take our merchandise in exchange."

Further despatches from Italy inform us that satisfactory results are being obtained with new artificial fibre, produced in Italy, that is expected to take the place of cotton and woolen cloths.

Here we see the harmful results to the producers of wheat in Canada, of cotton in United States, and of wool in Australia, by the insistence of the Governments of those countries that their wheat, cotton and wool, etc must be paid for in gold and must not be permitted to be paid for with foreign merchandise and goods which, after all, is the only money Italy and many other countries possess.

The inevitable result of this stupid high tariff restriction policy is obvious. Foreigners who cannot sell their goods to us are forced to develop substitutes for our raw products, and so there will be less and less demand for wheat, cotton and wool, and then the producers of these commodities, in the end, will most certainly be harmed.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Excellent Italian crop outlook apparently dissipated by excessive rains and rust -- Official Argentine corn estimate reduced -- Greece buys Australian wheat -- Weevils in some Argentine wheat arrivals -- Excessive rains reduce crop outlook in Greece and Portugal -- Less favorable outlook in the Balkans.

Westcott Notes.

Mr and Mrs J. Templeton and daughter Winnie of Saskatoon are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Linden Jacobsen.

Mr Alfred Baudistel left last week for Banff where he will be employed for the summer.

Miss Edith Webster who was home for a short holiday with her parents, left for Victoria. Edith is a student nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital at Victoria.

The Westcott Lutheran Ladies Aid held their June meeting at the Parsonage on June 21, with a very good attendance.

Devotion was conducted by Reverend J. Kuring which was followed by the roll call. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted after which arrangements were made for the annual picnic which will take place on July 19th. Bazaar material was then distributed and a baby shower was given for the Folkman twins who received many lovely and useful gifts. The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer and lunch was served.

ments were served at the close after which the ladies dispersed, feeling pleased the rain had held off until their arrival home.

Miss Evelyn Barnes is spending her vacation at home. Evelyn has 15 months more before she completes her course for R.N. at the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary.

Too Many Variations In A Universe Of Motion For The Ordinary Mind To Grasp

A lecture by Dr. Edwin Hubble of the Mount Wilson Observatory, or indeed by almost any modern astronomer, leaves one confused and solemn. This is not Dr. Hubble's fault. It is the universe's fault. Dr. Hubble has discovered that the galaxy of which the earth is an almost unnoticeable part is moving at the rate of about 100 miles a second in the general direction of the constellation Draco. The scientific interest in this statement is that it is consistent with the theory of the expanding universe. The layman's interest is pathetically different. He cannot help wondering where he is going, and why.

Let us suppose that the layman is going home during the rush hour on a Bronx express. He is trying to work his way forward because he believes that there is more room there than is motion No. 1, along the line of the train's path. Motion No. 2 is that of the train itself, toward the sylvan wilderness of the Bronx. But there are other lines of progression. The earth is revolving on its axis—motion No. 3. It is also moving around the sun, at the rate of about 18 miles a second—motion No. 4. The sun, with its solar system, is circulating around the centre of our galaxy through what is breezily described as a "200,000,000-year orbit"—motion No. 5. The movement of the whole galactic system, with its thousand million suns, is motion No. 6. If time is a dimension, then the movements of the wheels and hands in the commuter's watch during the trip from the Grand Central to Fordham Road can be set down as motion No. 7.

Too many variables enter into the situation to permit any mathematician, however skilled, to plot the course of the commuter with absolute accuracy from the time he leaves the Grand Central Station to the moment he gets off at Fordham Road.

We are sure, however, that if home is conceived of as a fixed point the commuter will never get home. His home, his office, his earth, his solar system, his galactic system, do not stay put for a fraction of a second. If he could step off for such a fraction of a second onto something immovable and solid he would never be able to catch up. But there is nothing immovable and solid.

It has been said many times and long ago that we are all travellers toward a mysterious destination. We are indeed. Science raises questions faster than it answers them. The Psalmist could still ask, "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" —New York Times.

A Famous Ship

Air-Liner Heracles Has Had A Notable Record

Reference has been made to the work which has been carried out recently by Heracles, Imperial Airways' air-liner, in taking up passengers on special-charter flights.

And now that the time has come when this famous aircraft is being withdrawn from the Paris route though this summer she will be carrying passengers across to Le Touquet it is certainly appropriate to take an opportunity of recalling that it was as far back as September 1931, that Heracles made her first trip over to Paris. And ever since then this air-liner known affectionately as "the grand old lady of the air" has been in constant service on this London-Paris route.

A striking fact is that in one year (1935) there were only four days when Heracles did not leave the ground. In that year alone she spent 2,500 hours in the air, flying 240,000 miles. Imperial Airways Bulletin.

The Wrong Day

Sir Edwin Lutyens, new president of the Royal Academy, is responsible for having passed this story on to Archbishop Downey of Liverpool who has been passing it on. A man was knocked down by a taxi and taken to an East-end hospital. When he recovered consciousness he asked the nurse: "Have I been brought in here to die?" "No," she replied. "Yes, terrible."

Coldstream Guards Band

Stationed For Month At British Pavilion In New York

A colorful, if anachronistic, element in the World of To-morrow is the Coldstream Guards Band, which was stationed at the British Pavilion, far from its usual stand at the Changing of the Guard before Buckingham or St. James's Palace. Ordinarily it plays at this traditional ceremony once every five days, taking its turn along with the bands of the Grenadier, Scots, Irish and Welsh Guards. The Coldstream band is the most venerable of this group, having played continually since its formation in 1742. By virtue of its age and reputation, it has been called upon to play at the most solemn state functions, such as the burial of George V., the accession to the throne of Edward VIII., and the coronation of George VI. and Elizabeth. It is not the band's fault that it was not on hand when the royal couple visited the Fair. The British government, which sent the men over and bought them $15,000 worth of new instruments to boot, or to toot), felt that more than a month would be too serious a drain on the Exchequer. So the band sailed for home on May 28.

Their leader, Captain J. Causley Windram, is 52, ruddy, and the son of a bandmaster in the royal Marines. He was graduated from the Royal Academy of Music in London and became head of the band in 1930. We learned from him that the band's headquarters are in King's Road, Chelsea, and that there an enormous library of band music is maintained three thousand tunes including five hundred marches. It's customary for British music publishers to appeal to the Guards for help when looking up some old number. We learned also that the men don't live in barracks, but with their families, like ordinary musicians, and that although officially listed as noncoms they are allowed to accept any outside engagements that don't conflict with their military duties. —The New Yorker.

The Human Touch

Impression Left On The Minds Of The People By Royal Visit

It is a flashing kaleidoscope of little incidents that make up the composite picture which is already comprehensive enough to leave a permanent impression on the minds of our people.

The Queen singing "Alouette" with a vast audience so that she can take it home to her children, tears in her eyes as she listens to the cheering on Dominion Square, the Royal couple realizing that the towering monument to the war dead in Ottawa prevented more than half the crowd from seeing them and so walking deliberately around the pile to give everybody a clear view, the subsequent walk through the swarming crowd of veterans all red tape fluttering futile in the breeze the Queen bringing the King back to the rear platform of their car to pose for one lone little farm girl who had run across the fields with her camera.

These kindly incidents are what the people are to-day telling each other often with a pardonable catch in the throat. —Montreal Star.

Ten Thousand Fire Crackers

Were Exploded In Brantford When Chinese Decorated Graves

Ten thousand fire crackers on slim, red firesticks, went off in Mount Hope cemetery in Brantford, Ont., as Chinese gathered to decorate a dozen Chinese graves and spread a feast for the departed.

A busload of the Chinese entered the cemetery in apparent glad spirit. There was no mourning or sadness evident as they proceeded to the graves of the departed, who are considered more fortunate in already having gone to their reward in Paradise.

Nation With A Future

Milwaukee Journal Sees Canada As A Valuable Ally

Americans and people of other nationalities are learning these days that there is more to the nation north of us than the "quaintness" of Quebec and the heroic lesson taught our children by the movies that the Northwest Mounted always gets its man. Canada is not an accidental collection of colonists, but a people with the look of youth in their eyes and the experience of maturity, a nation with a future.

To Canada the assurance President Roosevelt gave that the United States would go to her defense if Canada were attacked does not come as permission to learn back on the oars and save the cost of self-defense. On the contrary, such a promise, enthusiastically applauded and supported by Americans south of 49 degrees, presents an obligation. And the way is open to co-operate.

The Canadian minister of defense, Ian MacKenzie, announces a policy "to guarantee that neither Canadian land, nor coastal waters shall be used in hostile operations against the United States." To put value behind the promise, the defense minister offers a program. It includes 500 fighting airplanes, defenses of Atlantic and Pacific coasts, a fleet of antisubmarine vessels. —Milwaukee Journal.

Ex-Soldiers Lose A Friend

Lady Decies Who Died In London Known As Sister Molly

Thousands of ex-soldiers are sad because "Sister Molly" is dead. That was the name by which they knew Gertrude Lady Decies, who has died, aged 70, in a London nursing home, says the London Daily Sketch. She was the widow of the late and sister-in-law of the present Lord Decies. Throughout the Great War she was a surgical nurse and did Red Cross work in Russia at the time of the revolution. Three years ago she leapt into the limelight when she wired to the Emperor of Abyssinia and got permission to organize the first women nurses to go to the Ethiopian battlefields. Lady Decies made many excursions into business. She turned her Ascot house, Scotswood, into a hotel. She organized a rabbit farm to try to capture the German fur trade during the war. She opened a tea-room as "Madame Sylvia". She ran a dogs' boarding-house. During the war she enlisted a battalion of dogs, with dog-corporals and dog-lieutenants to collect for the Red Cross. London pigeons will miss her, too; she fed thousands of them in Belgravia.

In Colonial Times

According to a published list of rules for table behavior in colonial times, colonial children were not allowed to ask for anything at the table, nor speak unless first spoken to, nor bite into a whole slice of bread.

In Chicago, 18,000 children vote for spinach in school lunchrooms. In the end, the irreverence of the young will kill these questionnaires.

Great Britain Commences Mass Production Of The World's Fastest Bombers

A Musical City

London's Concert Halls Are Open All The Year Around

There is a type of critic who says that the British are not a musical people. Why they say so is difficult to fathom because although their season of grand opera at London's Covent Garden is not so long as at the Metropolitan in New York, there are more concert halls and more front-rank artists appearing in them all the year around than in any other city in the world. The London Promenade Concerts inaugurated nearly 50 years ago by Sir Henry J. Wood, and still conducted by him, have no rival in any land.

Forty years ago this summer the London Music Festival was initiated at the Queen's Hall. Madame Patti sang there; Paderewski played there at the height of his powers. The forty-first series began there two weeks ago to run for one month. The great Arturo Toscanini, Italian conductor, is scheduled to conduct seven orchestral concerts, and for seating accommodation aggregating 13,500 for the seven, there were 75,000 applications for tickets.

And they say London is not a musical city. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

New Uses For Wheat

Research Workers Looking For Commercial Utilization Of Cereals

Intensive scientific research to find new industrial uses for wheat in Canada was urged by Cecil Lamont, representative of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, in an interview on his return from the meeting of the United States Chemical Council in Columbus, Ohio.

"Research is continuing to yield many new industrial uses for soya beans, corn and synthetic wool from skim milk in the United States," he said.

"Virtually no comparable scientific work is being done with wheat, although the United States government and Ford laboratories are beginning to direct attention to this cereal."

"Nylon," a synthetic silk, claimed to be superior to the real article, is being manufactured from substances derived from coal, air and water, and will be on the market in 1940, he said.

Ten bushels of soya beans would be used in manufacturing each car in 1940 by one large manufacturer for the making of gear parts, steering wheels, dashboards and so on.

"Won't you subscribe five shillings towards the funeral expenses of our saxophone player?"

"Rather! Here's thirty—bury the whole band!"

It has been estimated that half of the people are infected with the fungus condition called athlete's foot.

Great Britain is to start mass production of the world's fastest twin-engined bomber, the Bristol Beaufort with a top speed of higher than 310 miles an hour.

Every month sees a steady stream of warplanes delivered to the Royal Air Force, ranging from the giant bomber Wellington which can carry two tons of bombs a distance of 3,240 miles to the single-seater Spitfire with a top speed of 350 miles and mounting eight machine-guns.

The Beaufort is a new development still on the secret list and the air ministry declines to give its performance figures. But this much is known—it is the fastest twin-engined bomber in service in any country and is designed as a bomber, torpedo bomber or long-range reconnaissance plane.

It carries a crew of four, has a mechanical gun turret amidships and mounts other guns forward. Its speed is in excess of 300 miles an hour, perhaps considerable in excess.

Six warplanes on the secret list were shown to a group of members of parliament at the Northolt air-drome. Two of these were "mystery ships". One was a new type twin-engined plane with a top speed to be comparable to the Spitfire.

Among the fighters, or pursuit planes, is the Gladiator which can climb 15,000 feet in seven minutes, the Hurricane with a top speed "in excess of 320" and carrying eight guns in her wings. The Spitfire which will dive at 500 miles an hour, only 100 miles an hour slower than the speed of a bullet from a .38 calibre revolver.

Among new types still on the secret list is a Roc two-seater fighter with a rotatable gun turret amidships and Siskin dive bomber. Both are reported extremely fast and with the Bristol Beaufort are going into production immediately.

Export Of Eggs

Shipments To British Market Have Been Of High Quality

Another 3,000 cases—30 dozen to a case—of Canadian Grade A eggs left Montreal during the week ended 13th May, en route to the British market, making a total export of about 5,000 cases since movement began about the third week in April. Recent quotations show that Canadian eggs are selling at one shilling per 10 dozen over Danish and Holland eggs, which have a notably high reputation among British buyers.

The shipments of Canadian eggs this year to the British market have been of notably high quality, according to officials of the Poultry Products Inspection and Grading Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The eggs that have gone overseas have come from farms in both Eastern and Western Canada—as far west as the western boundary of Saskatchewan and as far east as the eastern boundary of Quebec. It is expected the export movement will continue active and that the total shipments this year may exceed those of last year, which aggregated about 25 cars.

So far the prices paid to Canadian producers have been equal to that which they would have got on the Montreal market.

Blenheim Palace

Famous Home Of The Duke And Duchess Of Marlborough

Blenheim Palace, home of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough and scene of a daring robbery the other day, is one of Britain's greatest show-places. It was built at the public expense for the first Duke of Marlborough an ancestor of Mr. Winston Churchill in 1705, following his victory in the battle of Blenheim, and has been in the family ever since.

The parkland is about 11 miles round, and is the largest private park in Britain. The palace is held direct from the Crown, and the rent is one miniature Union Jack a year, which in the olden days, used to be "paid over" at an impressive ceremony and placed over the effigy of the first duke in Windsor Castle—News of The World.

The planes kept flying over them. They returned again and again, but they never hesitated. Kitty Medill stood on her rock and waved and screamed, but the pilots gave no sign of noticing her.

"You fools, you fools! You blind bats!" she sobbed, cursing.

Then she made a careful survey of their situation and realized that they were hidden from above by a ledge over the one on which they had crashed. She might gesture and yell the rest of her life without being seen by the fliers.

"Okeh, then, I'll get out where they can see me," she decided. She didn't try to tell Sarah Lynn. She took half her matches and a sheaf of maps and charts and walked in the direction of Mt. Unumnum, stopping constantly to mark the trail in some fashion, tying to the chaparral the ribbon from her hair, her belt, her pink satin garter. When she found a bare rocky space she tore up her papers and gathered twigs and dry leaves and got her fire to going. She broke off branches of manzanita and fed the flame, and she discovered that green stuff made a denser smoke.

In an incredibly short time the planes were back, three of them, dipping and circling. She could see the pilots peering down. She stood away from the fire and tore off her blouse and waved, and one of the airmen waved an arm in answer. He flew perilously low, and she recognized the Hermod with Gunnar Thorwald leaning out to look at her. She pointed back toward the place where she had left her passenger and he nodded and flew away in the same direction.

Kit's knees gave way and she sat down and the breeze blew acrid smoke into her eyes and mouth, but she was up in a moment, running back to the wreck.

"Babe, it's okeh! He's here! I mean, he will be in a minute—your boy-friend in his bust! Kid, it's all right, do you hear me?"

If Sarah Lynn heard she gave no evidence of it. She seemed to be busily preoccupied talking to herself, and the free hand opened and closed and tensed stiffly, so Kitty Medill raced back again to keep her fire going and wait for Gunnar Thorwald. He was an intolerable time in coming. She had moments of panic in which she was sure he hadn't seen her after all; that she had imagined the Hermod.

But at last she saw him working his difficult way swiftly through the thick, harsh underbrush.

"She lives?" he demanded hoarsely. "She's alive, sure."

"Hurt?" "How?" Icicle-blue gimlets boring into her brain.

"Well, you see, it's on her. On her back. The ship is. I tried to lift it off but . . ."

"Take me there!"

She turned and ran back, Gunnar following so closely that he almost trod upon her. "Quick!" he kept saying. "Be quick!"

When they reached the wreck Kitty Medill shut her eyes. She didn't want to see his face when he saw Sarah Lynn, but it was almost as bad to hear him. It sounded as if he had flung himself down on the ground beside her, and Kit thought he must be talking in his own Swedlingo, for she could not understand the words, but she understood perfectly the terrible, racked sobbing.

When she heard him working Kit took her hands away from her eyes and looked at him. He was working so fast, so furiously, so surely, with such fierce efficiency. He wrenched and chopped and tore away, twisted and pried, dead white, with sweat pouring from him. It seemed to Kit, watching the cold frenzy, that he could have done it all with his bare hands.

"You needn't trouble yourself."

Once he called to her and pointed to his canteen. "Give her water, a small drink at first." He looked at her fully for the first time. Only that I may need your help," he said levelly. "I would kill you."

"You needn't trouble yourself," she said jauntily. "I can tend to that little chore." She crawled close to Sarah Lynn and managed to make her take three swallows.

Two other men came running through the chaparral presently, with young Bill Dana following. They set to work instantly under Gunnar's directions and that speeded up the affair tremendously. Kit could see, but she was sure the ace could have done it alone.

One thing he did do alone. When the weight was finally dragged off Sarah Lynn the others stood aside and let him stoop and lift her.

She screamed once, a short, dreadful cry, and he put her down on the blankets Kit had spread. Sarah Lynn looked up at him, her eyes big in her burning face, recognizing him clearly. She said thickly, "Go away! Don't come in here!" She held up a warning hand. "Fly away in the night! Ladybug, ladybug, fly away home!"

When he bent over her, murmuring, she pointed an accusing finger. Her hoarse voice said, packed with scorn, "Keep away from me, drunken fool!"

Once again, Sarah Lynn Dana, social registerite member of the exclusive suburb of Danavale, became

San Jose and San Francisco papers for many days.

She had flown with the notorious Kitty Medill, famous stunt-flier and moving picture double for dangerous scenes, who was making a first hop after being grounded by the Department of Commerce for reckless flying; she was lost; she was found, and found by Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, her fiance; she would live; she would live, but she would never walk again.

It was after this last announcement that Kitty Medill committed suicide, quietly and with a good deal of reticence and dignity.

They did not tell Sarah Lynn about Kitty Medill. They did not, in the first days, tell her about anything. She was constantly under opiates. Sometimes, when their effect wore thin, she murmured feverishly, anxiously,

"Gunnar . . ." the name came through the confusion again and again. "Gunnar . . ."

Her mother, her beauty deepened and clarified by draining grief, hung over her in an agony of tenderness. "Yes, darling! What is it, darling? What are you trying to say? Tell Mother!"

"Let me," the nurse said capably, taking her place. "Yes, Gunnar, I understand," she said slowly and clearly. "You want to see Gunnar?"

The head, held rigidly in a frame, could not move, but the eyes rolled wildly in negation. "No, no, no!" She made a great effort. "Tell him tell him!"

"Yes, I understand. What shall I tell him?"

"Don't come in here . . . Don't come in here . . . Go away!"

"All right, dearie, I'll tell him. Now you go to sleep again." Miss Burke straightened up. She was young enough and gallant enough to revel in the drama of the case and she thought that particular phase of delirium pretty sad. She followed Mrs. Dana out into the hall. "Of course, that doesn't mean a thing," she was beginning briskly when the mother interrupted.

"Mr. Thorwald is downstairs?"

"Goodness, yes! always. I don't know when he eats or sleeps. He . . ."

"Then, will you kindly go down and tell him exactly what my daughter has just said?"

The nurse hesitated. "But, you understand that she is delirious. Mrs. Dana?" It doesn't mean . . ."

"You needn't trouble yourself," she said jauntily. "I can tend to that little chore." She crawled close to Sarah Lynn and managed to make her take three swallows.

I ask, Miss Burke. Tell him exactly what she said, and without comment," she said levelly.

Miss Burke dislodged the elevator and ran down three flights of sound-proof stairs on her heelless rubber soles. "Aha, So, that's the scenario!" she told herself, deciding to tell the Norwegian ace exactly what she pleased. She found him as usual walking up and down the long hall.

"A change?" he demanded in a queer, spent voice.

"No. We weren't expecting any change, you know. She is certainly no worse."

"She asked for me?"

Fiery, Itching Skin Gets Speedy Relief

"Well, not exactly, asked, but she talks about you a lot. I mean, she's under opiates all the time, but she keeps murmuring your name."

"When—when can I see her?"

"Well, not just yet. They seem to think it isn't wise. The shock—"

"You will tell me when I can see her?"

"I'll tell you." She put her well-groomed hand for an instant on his arm. "It's a promise. But in the meantime, you know, a little eating and sleeping."

Union Of Small Nations

Idea Of Queen Wilhelmina Is Not For Military Alliance

King Leopold of Belgium has endorsed a suggestion by Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands that the smaller European nations endeavor by consultation to reach "an economic and moral understanding." "Why should not the small powers," he asked, "which in Europe include more than 100,000,000 people, come together to seek a durable and effective harmony of thoughts and desires in the struggle against the great moral and material distress of our era?"

That makes sense. Singly these small states are helpless; united they could wield an enormous moral force. They are small in population, but some of them represent perhaps mankind's greatest progress in the arts of civilized life and the loss of any one would be of incalculable injury to the world. Such nations as Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland are to be reckoned not in size, not in wealth or colonies or material things, but in terms of their past and present service to their own people and the world.

King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina have in mind, of course, nothing in the way of a military alliance.

Nevertheless such an informal association as they suggest would be a power for peace and another factor against war of which the dictatorships would have to take note. World opinion is an intangible thing, but none the less a thing even dictators must take into account, no matter what they may say to the contrary.

Tom's a popular chap. But he'd trade the swankiest social engagement for a date with Marjorie.

Clever girl! She knows how a vivid vocabulary gives zest and color to everyday talk. And you can quickly learn to use word-magic, too, by taking easy tips like these:

Keep your ears peeled and your eyes open for bright new words and phrases in newspapers, advertisements, other people's conversation.

Think up substitutes of your own for worn-out expressions like "tired as a dog," "the time of my life," "no sooner said than done." You might say "tired as a third-hand car," "more fun than six circuses," "done like a stroke of lightning."

Distinguish between tiresome slang like "Can you beat it?", "You're telling me!" and vivid words that have punch and pep such as "gumption", "habbergast," "hokum."

Our 32-page booklet gives dozens of ways to improve your vocabulary, talk your way into new opportunities, good times.

Unsurveyed Acres In United States Estimated As 508,000,000

The new official master map of the United States now shows 508,000,000 acres of public domain still unsurveyed after 150 years.

It may be many years, if ever, before government map makers finally can portray the outlines of a finished nation, officials said.

They estimated there were 127,000,000 uncharted acres in continental United States and 376,000,000 in Alaska.

Hartley of Manchester, England, father of Bill Hartley, of the Pioneer, was recently installed Grand Master of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows. This Order, whose headquarters are in England, is an international order and has over a million members. Mr. Hartley has been a prominent officer in the Order for over 35 years.

Our telephone was cut off on Tuesday and we apologize to any who could not get us during that period. We know that we were in the wrong because we committed the grievous offence of not paying our telephone bill until one day after the bill was due. We must thank our local telephone manager for the innumerable courtesies (?) he extends to his patrons.
